UK Outlook for Wednesday 5 Jan 2022 to Friday 14 Jan 2022:
A cold and frosty start to this period, before rain spreads from the west. This rain may be heavy at times and could be preceded by a short period of snow, mainly in northern areas. Cloud and rain are likely to clear, leading to drier and brighter conditions further south and east. Generally windy for all, with the strongest winds accompanying the rain to the north and west. Overall, temperatures are expected to be near to or above average, although some temporary colder periods are likely. Through the later part of this period, a continuation of the rather changeable regime is expected with spells of wet and windy weather, however interspersed by drier, brighter periods.
